Hey,

ok so my dad needs to sell his condo in playa del carmen and the lawyer down there said he needs a power of attorny that's been apostiled (sp?) so it can be used in mexico. dad lives in austin TX. he's 78 and can barely walk so he def can't fly down. mom passed last yr so it's just him, no other signers needed.

the closing is supposed to happen next monday or tuesday so we are kind of in panic mode lol. is there any way you guys can do this fast? happy to pay rush fees whatever. they want it in spanish too I think — or do they translate it on their end? not sure, the mexican notario didn't really explain.

lmk what you need from us. dad's name is Robert J. Renfield, i'm his son David. my number is +1-512-555-9928 if texting is easier. thx so much.
